City of Janesville.
Tuesday Evening, June 2, 1863.
Official Paper of the City.

General Grant's army is in the rear of Vicksburg, in a most excellent military position, the line extending from the upper water batteries, on Walnut Hills, above Vicksburg, around to the heights above Warrenton and below Vicksburg. The average distance of our main force from the city is two miles. Our line of skirmishers, however, is quite up to the rebel entrenchments—a few yards generally measuring the distance between our sharpshooters and the rebel earthworks.

A detailed account of all the operations, including the battles and marches by which the position has been attained, would be too long for your columns. A brief resume must answer.

A three months' campaign in the front, with the attempt to reach and carry the enemy's right through Yazoo Pass and Steele's Bayou, having demonstrated that the flank could not be turned in that way—the battle of Chickasaw Bayou having shown that a single column could not reach Vicksburg by a front attack on Walnut Hills, Haines' and Snyder's Bluffs proving altogether too strong for the naval flotilla, and all the canal projects failing, after immense labor, it was determined to attempt the movement which has so far proved successful. The history of modern warfare furnishes few that equal it in boldness and audacity of conception, and so far, in brilliant, triumphant execution.

While the 16th army corps (Sherman's) was posted in full force in the immediate front of Vicksburg, the 17th (McPherson's) was moved by divisions and brigades across the country from Milliken's Bend, 16 miles above Sherman's Landing, and encamped below and about Carthage. Admiral Porter ran the blockade with his iron-clads and two transports. A vigorous cannonade from Sherman's casemated batteries opened the next morning on the town. Four other transports followed the admiral's fleet. The 13th army corps (McClernand's) followed the 17th across the country. Things being thus prepared, Gen. Sherman, at midnight on the 30th of April, moved up the Yazoo on a large fleet of transports, preceded by seven gunboats. Early in the morning he opened a fierce attack upon Haines' and Snyder's Bluffs. The same day Porter attacked the batteries at Grand Gulf.

The rebel Generals were completely deceived. Their main forces were concentrated at Vicksburg and Haines' Bluff. Grand Gulf was left with a garrison of about 1,000 men. On the 2d of May, Sherman renewed the attack on Haines' Bluff, and Porter on Grand Gulf. The transports ran the batteries below, and the divisions were rapidly crossed over the Mississippi. Grand Gulf was evacuated, and Grant had a foothold on the rebel side of the Mississippi. In the night time, Sherman returned to Young's Point, and the next day moved his corps (the 15th) to Grand Gulf, and joined Grant. In the meantime, Grant had, with Osterhaus' and Logan's divisions, overtaken the rebel Bowen's force at Wilson's Hill, completely routing them, and taking seven hundred prisoners. Pushing rapidly up the line of the Big Black river, near Raymond, he met the enemy under Gen. Gregg, and at once attacked and defeated him, with Logan's division of McPherson's and Tuttle's of Sherman's corps, capturing some two thousand prisoners. Without delay, Sherman's and McClernand's corps moved on, capturing the rebel camp at Jackson, capturing the state capital, after a short engagement, on the 14th. McClernand's corps, the head of whose column was eight miles in the rear, was at once ordered to move by Hildward's Station towards the Big Black Bridge. McPherson moved along the line of the road, through Bolton, and Sherman, on the right, towards the Bridgeport Ferry. Between Bolton and Edward's Station, at Champion Hill, the enemy under Gen. Tilghman were found posted in a very strong position. Crocker's and Hovey's divisions attacked them in front, and a very severe battle took place. Our field was fought over three times. The rebels finally gave way as Logan was moving in upon their flank. Gen. Tilghman was killed and his army utterly routed. Several thousand prisoners and thirty-three pieces of artillery were captured. The army crossed the Big Black by three columns the next morning, and moved at once on the work in the rear of Vicksburg. Sherman on the right, McPherson in the center, and McClernand on the left. The enemy re-entrenched their positions in the rear of Vicksburg, and along the line of Chickasaw Bayou and the Yazoo. In the night, Steele's division, of Sherman's corps, made a night attack upon the rebel works on Walnut Hills—the same which he attacked in December last—and after a hard battle of five hours' duration, defeated them. Our right was thus brought to the heights above the Yazoo. Haines' and Snyder's Bluffs were captured, with all their ordnance and stores.

The next day, Gen. Grant ordered an assault to be made on the whole line, at 10 o'clock. The assault was delayed until two in the afternoon, in consequence of a report from McClernand, that he was not ready to move. Promptly at two o'clock Sherman's corps and the right of McPherson's moved forward, and the assault began. The right of McPherson's corps waited for the right of McClernand. McClernand did not move. The assault was therefore made by the right and right center. It was a most gallant attack. Our men, in the face of a storm of grape and canister and rifles, charged down hills, up ravines, and up hills, straight to the enemy's earthworks. The rebel ditches were circular and deep, and the parapets of such height that our brave men could not scale them. The enemy, finding that they were not attacked by our left, massed in front of Sherman and McPherson, and we were repulsed. Many brave officers and men fell in this assault. Our troops lay close to the rebel works until night, when they were withdrawn.

Our line of supplies by the way of Grand Gulf had been abandoned for several days, in consequence of its great length. During the night after the assault, Gen. Sherman, in person, with a small escort of cavalry, looked up and opened a road across Chickasaw bottom, to the Yazoo, and succeeded in getting dispatches through to Young's Point. Supply boats came up at once, and the army was fully provided with rations. This is now our line of supplies, and the army is well and easily provided with commissary and ordnance stores.

At the time of the first assault, the enemy was in the greatest consternation. All the prisoners in Vicksburg were released, and sent across the river. I believe, if McClernand had made the assault, as ordered, our army would have taken Vicksburg. Why he did not, I really do not know. I would not like to say that he is more politician than general—more jealous of others and ambitious of self than he is becoming a good soldier; but this is the fact, if one-half the men asserted by officers in relation to his conduct at the first and second assaults is true; if it is, he ought not to be where he is.

During the night of the 21st, the gunboats and mortars opened upon the city and the lower batteries. During the whole night, and until ten in the morning of the 22d, a constant, heavy, terrific cannonade was kept up. Soon after daylight, the batteries of the army opened fire. The rebels replied from all their guns. The water batteries were silenced by the gunboats, but those on the heights kept at work. The gunboats could not fire at them, as our army was in their rear.

About midday another assault was ordered on the whole line. Storming parties of volunteers, and forlorn hopes, were advanced under cover of field batteries and sharpshooters, and supported by brigades. The men moved bravely and well into the field, and up to the works; but all in vain. We could not take the works. The men dug steps in the earthworks with their bayonets, and planted their colors on the rebel parapets, whence neither party could remove them, every man who showed himself falling from the shot of a rifleman. Our loss during the day was very severe, especially of officers.

Vicksburg is defended in the rear by works 15 feet in height, with ditches 10 feet deep—the works standing on steep hillsides, every approach protected by rifle pits and covered by artillery. It cannot be taken by assault, but will be taken. It is a doomed city.

This morning a mine under one of the forts, in front of Sherman's corps, was blown up, and the site is now in our possession.

The gunboats Choctaw and Baron De Kalb returned last evening from Yazoo City, 100 miles above, on the Yazoo. The city capitulated. All the rebel government stores and a partly burned ram, were destroyed.

I send you a partial list of casualties. Our loss, so far, is about 5,000 killed and wounded, perhaps less. The enemy's loss, so far, is not less than 15,000. Seven thousand prisoners are in our hands, and 92 pieces of artillery. The quantity of small arms, ordnance, camp and garrison equipment that has fallen into our hands, is very large.

This is the total of our army's work: In 16 days it has marched 160 miles, fought five battles, taken the capital of Mississippi, destroyed all communication with the rebel army at Tallahoma, captured 7,000 prisoners, 92 pieces of artillery, 8,000 stand of small arms, seven miles of heavy fortifications on the rebel right, completely invested the city in the rear, and open for us a new and perfect line of supplies. During those sixteen days, the army had but four days' rations from the depots of supplies.

HEADQUARTERS 8th REG'T WIS. INF'TY, No. 1, CARROLL BUILDING, JACKSON, MISS., May 15, 1863.

Editors Gazette:—Yesterday the United States forces under General Grant, after a sharp engagement, triumphantly entered the capital of Mississippi, and I am now writing to you from under the roof of the state capital, on the top of which floats the good old flag. The paper, pen and ink I am using are all seceded. We lost quite a number killed and wounded. The 2d brigade, composed of the 5th Minnesota, 8th Wisconsin, 11th and 47th Illinois, and the 2d Iowa battery, was the first to enter the town. General Mower ordered us to charge into the town, we came at a double-quick for about one mile, and the rebels, composed mostly of South Carolina and Georgia troops, got out at treble-quick, better time than we could make. We captured all their artillery, and equipments of all sorts in abundance. The great depots of the confederacy for this state are here. The arsenal and foundries, and all confederate stores and equipments, are being burned at different parts of the city. The depots and railroads are being destroyed and great will be the loss of the rebels by this raid. I think we will leave here soon with the whole army for some other point, probably to capture Vicksburg.

I will send you a copy of the Daily Mississippiian, published here this morning we entered the town. It will make you laugh to read the editorial column. He says in one of his editorials:

"ARRIVAL OF GEN. JOE JOHNSON.—We are pleased to know that Gen. Johnston arrived here last evening. He will immediately make such disposition of the troops at his command as to foil all attempts of the Yankees to capture our state capital."

This article was published in the morning. At 1 p. m., Joe Johnston was beautifully whipped by McPherson on our left, and at two we (Sherman's corps) silenced all their batteries on the right; and at three our skirmishers joined with McPherson's, and orders being given to prepare for the final charge, the whole line for some three or four miles charged upon the city with such a yell as only Yankees can give, our brigade standing the brunt in Sherman's corps during the whole movement.

We were at once ordered to occupy the state buildings and grounds, and are on provost duty at present. The men all got everything they wanted, the rebels leaving everything behind, "to the victors belong the spoils." We had been without tents for 14 days and marching continually, only laying still one day during that time. Yesterday the rain came down in torrents during our advance on the town and all were soaked through, but the men were in hopes of capturing the town, and were determined, and they did it with a will. There were none killed in our regiment, most of the fighting on our road was done with artillery, we supporting it. We have a large lot of prisoners captured here and at the battle of Raymond on the 12th; well, to make the thing short, we have got everything, and we can march to the gulf now if the word is given, but I think Vicksburg is our next place.

We are living mostly off the country, and find plenty of everything, except bread and salt. We can live here. I wish you could have heard the shouts of our troops when the signal corps ran up the stars and stripes on the capital as our brigade entered the west gate of the grounds. "Old Abe" our eagle, dropped his wings and looked as if he would like to say, "bully for us."

I have not time to give you a full description of our journey since we left Young's Point. We passed through a very wealthy part of Louisiana. Saw many alligators, crossed the Mississippi on the gunboat Louisville to Grand Gulf, and marched to Jackson in 14 days. We have had hard times but are paid in full up to this time. I will write again as soon as convenient.

Respectfully yours,
W. B. BRITTON, 8th Wis.

The largest single transaction in wheat that the Wisconsin has any recollection of, lately took place at Milwaukee in a sale of 77,000 bushels of No. 1 spring wheat, at $1.19 per bushel.

CAIRO, June 1.—4 P. M.
Special to the Chicago Journal.—The prisoners from below have arrived, and are now debarking.

Several deserters from the rebel service, and who have taken the oath of allegiance, are here. They left Vicksburg Monday evening. They belong in Missouri, and left that state under Price. They say Pemberton's force is between twenty-eight and thirty thousand. Vicksburg, in their opinion, will soon surrender. The rebels have no large amount of supplies in the city.—The rebel loss, in the battle on Friday, was very large.

No one has arrived from below, except those with prisoners, in this city's hours. It is said the boats at Memphis have all been impressed into government service.

WASHINGTON, June 1.
Special to Chicago Tribune.—Gen. Hunter has been removed from the department of the south. Gen. Gilmore succeeds him. Other important changes are expected in the same department. The President's assistant private secretary, J. M. Hay, late a colonel on Hunter's staff, is now returning to Washington.

Col. Wm. Birney, of the 4th New Jersey, son of James G. Birney, once the abolition candidate for the presidency, has been detailed as inspector for organizing negro troops, and arrived Saturday night to enter upon his work. The fact of an officer of his standing being detailed, indicates an intention to go into the business of raising negro troops pretty rigorously. It is not unlikely that Col. Birney will superintend the organizing of these troops at Pittsburg and Cincinnati.

Bonds have been deposited for national banks at Cleveland and Chicago, and preliminary papers filed for a bank with $400,000 capital at Pittsburg.

Commissioner Lewis decided to-day that every convauing male member of a Shaker community is entitled to exemption of $600 from the income tax.

The three highest in the graduating class of the Naval Academy are from the west, namely: H. Glass, Illinois; G. J. Dickman, Wisconsin; and G. McGrover, Illinois. H. C. Taylor, Ohio, is the seventh. Senator Harris' son is the sixth, and Prince De la Motte is the twelfth. The last named has been applied for immediate service as a volunteer. Kellogg and Campbell of Illinois, are 17th and 18th in a class of 20.

Seventy rebel deserters have been sent to Philadelphia. By the new policy inaugurated by the government, all rebel deserters hereafter coming within our lines, must, in addition to the oath of allegiance, take an oath to remain north of Philadelphia, during the war. If found south of Philadelphia, Penn., they are to be treated as spies. The government has discovered that large numbers of rebels who arrive here under the garb of desertion, have, after gaining valuable information, taking rebel mails, &c., returned south.

CINCINNATI, June 1.
Special to the Tribune.—General Burnside has issued order No. 84, prohibiting the circulation of the New York World in his department. Also suppressing the Chicago Times.

Brigadier General Ammen is charged with the execution of the latter order.

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES.—On Saturday night the Luminary arrived with news from below to the 28th. She reports that the gunboat Cincinnati was sunk by the fire of the Vicksburg batteries on the 26th, with a loss, it is reported, of over 20 men killed and wounded.

The Clara Poe was fired on at Island No. 65, on the 28th, by guerrillas. A number of rifle balls penetrated her works, but killed no one.

The hospital boat R. C. Wood arrived this morning with several hundred wounded officers.

There is nothing reliable from General Grant.

CINCINNATI, June 1.
A staff officer of one of the commanding generals in Grant's army, who left Vicksburg on Wednesday last, arrived in this city yesterday morning, and left last evening for Washington. He brings the latest news from Grant's army, and was in consultation with General Burnside a good portion of yesterday.

He states that General Grant is perfectly certain of his ability to take Vicksburg, but says it will take time, perhaps a week longer, and perhaps two weeks. Three assaults have been made on the rebel works with heavy columns of our forces, in all of which we were repulsed. The assault was made by General Sherman with 20,000 men, and of that number 600 were killed and a large number wounded.

General Grant is now engaged in building works, with the view of taking the place by regular approaches. He is also mining some of the rebel works. Our outer line is within one hundred yards, at points, of the last far more men gunboats. Grant has far more men gunboats than the rebels from working their heavy guns. He says the rebel works in the rear of the city are far more formidable than those on the front.

General Grant has been reinforced by a considerable portion of General Banks' forces, and more are coming. This officer states that Gen. Johnston is still in the neighborhood of Jackson, Mississippi, gathering forces to attack Grant's rear, but that he has not yet succeeded in obtaining fifteen thousand men, while he is short of both provisions and ammunition, and the roads having been destroyed he cannot obtain either.

It is certain that the Black river bridge has been destroyed, and it is positively known that Johnston has not thrown any of his men across the river. Gen. Grant has far more men gunboats than the rebels from working their heavy guns. He says the rebel works in the rear of the city are far more formidable than those on the front.
